

DISTRICT IS SCoured FOR ARMY PRISONER

Man Who Escaped From Barracks Still at Large With Police and Service Men in Hunt—Guard May Have to Serve Out Sentence.

A man hunt, in which an escaped prisoner from the Washington Barracks is the quarry, and police and soldiers are the hunters, started today in the District. George Adams is the name of the prisoner. It is thought to be assumed. The home of his parents in the northwest section, and that of a sister in Alexandria, are now under surveillance. Private Charles Funk, who was on guard over Adams and another prisoner named Earl Browning when the former got away, may have to stand trial by court-martial, with the prospect of serving the remaining nine months of Adams' sentence, unless he is apprehended. Until this morning it was thought that Adams, who was missed yesterday afternoon, might be hiding in the barracks. A chain guard was mounted there, and other precautions taken to prevent him getting out. The escape was spectacular in the extreme, shots being fired at him as he dashed along officers' row, ignoring commands to halt. While the prisoners were passing from one room to another in one of the buildings, Adams suddenly slipped through a door to the street and started to run. The sentinel called to him to halt. He took no notice, and a second command failing to make him stop, Funk took aim and fired twice. Both shots missed and the man disappeared behind the row of houses.

FIRE PREMONITION REALIZED AT HOTEL

Fifty Guests Escape From Structure Where Woman Foretold Blaze.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Fire early today in the Greek Hotel caused a panic among the fifty guests, and drove them down the fire-escape. Those on the fire-escapes found their exit checked when they reached the hotel portico, and they remained there until rescued by firemen. Mrs. Mary Well Jennings got out safely. She had a premonition of the fire last night, and caused the clerk to change her room to another on the second floor near the stairway. At dinner last night, Mrs. Jennings said that the hotel would be burned before morning.

You'll be glad, we know, to buy $30 to $40 tailored suits at $18

These suits are the wonder of all who investigate their worth. Women say they have never seen so much style, good workmanship, and such splendid materials in suits selling at such a price. This is just what we have intended it to be—the greatest suit sale of its character ever held in Washington.

Materials are herringbone suitings, broadcloths, serges, panamas, and mixed suitings in desirable striped effects. Coats are cut long, and some trimmed in satin, braid, or fancy buttons. We have included, too, at this price many suits in spring styles that were bought way under regular value, and we've concluded to sell the same way.

We have all sizes in one style or another, and among the varied styles shown there is sure to be one that will appeal most to your fancy. 2nd floor—Suit Section.
